

Connect with Young Investigators at the FENS Forum 2012

Is your company or organization looking to hire highly qualified young scientists and researchers?

If so, there are multiple opportunities at the FENS Forum 2012 to connect with young investigators and promote your company / organization and the job opportunities that you may have available:

1. “Building your career” NENS workshop:

Date: July 15, 2012, starting at 18:45

Venue: CCIB (FENS Forum 2012 venue)

The Network of European Neuroscience Schools (NENS) committee of FENS along with the committee for Young Investigator Training Programme is organizing a workshop for young investigators where your company / organization would be able to liaise with the participants and begin connecting with some of the best and brightest young scientists and researchers in the field. Companies will receive information about the profile of the participating young scientists, which in turn will receive a list of participating companies.

2. “Chance to meet” activities:

First activity:

Date: July 16, 2012, 11:30-14:30

Venue: CCIB (FENS Forum 2012 venue)

NENS and the SENC, host society for the FENS Forum 2012, are providing a forum in which your organization or company can publicize the exciting job opportunities that you have available by setting up a table where you can display more information and interact directly with young investigators. The list of registered companies will be published in advance and on site.

Second activity:

Date: July 16 and 17, 2012

Venue: CCIB (FENS Forum 2012 venue)

An area at the CCIB will be available for your company / organization to conduct interviews with promising candidates. The organizing committee will also be collecting CV and career interests of the young researchers which will be available to you so that you can interview those with matching interests.

Pricing for participation:
